FIREPROOF: Never Leave Your Partner Behind

I've always thought it was too easy to get married and too easy to get divorced (especially when there are children). We see so many examples of lust or affairs in the media, that we begin to think that's how the world – and marriage – works. But what if we gave our spouse the same time and attention that we do to our job, to our volunteer work, to the kids – or even to an affair? Then we might have a truly incredible marriage!

This movie shows a disintegrating marriage – and how to recreate/reclaim it with the 40-day Love Dare, which incorporates specific action steps you can take. They have the Love Dare as a book now, so you can work the program yourself. Even if you have a great marriage, this could take it to the next level.

If you're expecting an action-packed movie and great acting, don't bother. This is the third movie made by these folks. All are heart-warming, inspirational, profound and effective. But aside from the main character who can act, all the rest are non-Hollywood actors, many are members of the church that produces these movies. Watch it not for the names and special effects, but for the impact on your heart.

Fireproof was the highest-grossing independent film in 2008, so it's been touching a lot of hearts.

FLYWHEEL was the first feature film from Sherwood Pictures. It was filmed with a budget of only $20,000! It was conceived in 2002 after Alex and Stephen Kendrick, who are both pastors on the staff of Sherwood Baptist Church in Albany, Georgia, saw the results of a survey from George Barna's organization that said movies and television shows are more influential in American culture than the church.

"We decided as a church to step out on faith and produce a full-length feature film," says Alex Kendrick.

Along the way, the movie acquired its title, $20,000 in unsolicited donations, and a prayed-for digital movie camera. The all-volunteer cast and crew came from Sherwood members.

The second movie by them was FACING THE GIANTS. While used by many different groups for varying purposes, it was also used by the Green Bay Packers. They went from being the NFL's youngest team coming off a nondescript 8-8 season in 2006-7 in coach Mike McCarthy's first year to favorites in the 2008 NFC championship game (though they lost). As a Vikings fan, I would've preferred they hadn't won our division. But this is another film that opens your heart.

I am moved to tears as I watch these movies (or even read some of the testimonials about their effect on people). They open my heart and soul, they make me want to be a better person, I remember my purpose for being here.

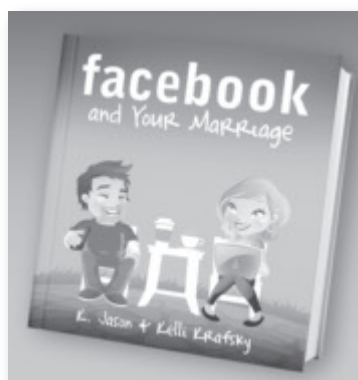

Let yourself, your spouse, and your whole family be impacted by this movie, or all three. Their next one is due out in 2011 and I can't wait!

This is a fun book, written in an accessible style that's a fast, informative and entertaining read. It's written as if it was a Facebook page and entries, so it's quick and concise.

If you've grown up with the internet being the norm from birth, you probably don't need this book – at least for the first part. The first part tells you how to set up a Facebook account, and gives you tidbits and tips on how to use the features, how to protect your privacy, and how to comfortably navigate Facebook.

The second part is for anyone who wants to protect their marriage. We've all heard about stories of people leaving their marriages for the new "love of their life," thus creating havoc in many lives. They tell you how to use Facebook – and protect that most cherished relationship.

You'll feel comfortable using Facebook after this clever book.
